The cyanide product runs about $74 to the pound.—Tribune.

Returns were received from Salt Lake yesterday from two cars of ore recently shipped to Denver from the Bocco-Homestead mine in White Pine county. The assays showed 14.5 ounces of silver to the ton and 65.5 per cent lead in one car and 12.7 ounces of silver and 62.7 lead on the other car, the two cars netting the company $1,646.35.—Salt Lake Tribune.

Dr. J. Letter Curious.

In postoffice transactions the lack of ingenuity and even of ordinary common sense is astonishing. The curious of the dead letter office include envelopes legibly cross marked "Return if not delivered" or "If not called for in five days, return to sender" without a word of further specifications. Others bear names without topographical data: "Hermann Kemper, painter and decorator, successor to Ritchie Bros. & Co." Workmen, foreigners especially, often seem to credit mail clerks with the gift of geographical clairvoyance: "Jan Jansen, at the miners' boarding house, or, perhaps, stops at Mrs. Baumgarten's place"—no town to hint about the state or county of the mining camp. "Please deliver as soon as possible" some such letters are marked and seem often to have been plastered with an extra stamp in the hope of inducing the carrier to give the matter his earliest attention.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Appeals to Fear.

The appeals to fear have well nigh ceased, and yet there is no fact which we are so compelled to see, as the fact of retribution. The law of retribution works in our present life. We become aware of it in our earliest infancy, and we never become developed in character until we have learned to fear that which is evil and to shun the consequences of sin. There is a sense of righteousness in all men, and all men know that unrighteousness brings punishment. It is fair to assume that what is a part of man's very structure here will continue hereafter. We may give up entirely the notion of a material hell, but we cannot give up the doctrine of retribution. Suffering must follow sin, and therefore to appeal to fear is not only legitimate, but it is in accordance with the structure of man's nature.—North American Review.

His Gin Rickey.

The Irishman who had never tasted a gin rickey ordered one so as to impress his friends. The bartender never had heard of a rickey, but he was ashamed to admit his ignorance, so he put a mixing glass under the bar and made a guess at it. Then he leaned back to await results. The Irishman sipped at the beverage and shook his head approvingly. "By gorry, 'tis a fine rickey," he said. "It ought to be," said the bartender. "I put in everything except the license."—Chicago Record.

SUNDAY DECEMBER 30, 1900

THE GAMBLING COMPROMISE CLOSED.

It is a relief to learn that law and order will be maintained at the Bay City as prescribed by law and that no compromise with crime will be made in the Chinese quarters of San Francisco. When gambling is legalized through a license system it is entitled to the protection of the law as it is lawful to gamble under such a police arrangement.

The lawful exercise of the right to gamble has nothing to do with its moral or immoral side as is either effected by the protection the law affords to the business. The gambler pays his license and he is entitled to conduct his business under such restrictions as the law imposes upon him and his business, if there are any restrictions imposed by law upon either the business or on the man, but the relation is changed when gambling is prohibited by law. It then becomes and is a crime within the prohibition imposed and those who violate the law are subject to such punishment as the prohibitory law imposes for its violation.

In the system mentioned there is order as provided by law and the business is regulated according to provision made by the law making power. The individual and the public each have rights as provided and regulated through law, when gambling is a licensed system.

When it is a prohibited system and is given the character of a crime the public have all the rights there are connected with gambling, the right of suppression and the right to punish, in the event of a violation of the law declaring it to be unlawful but there is neither system nor order in a compromise with those who are engaged in a business that is carried on in opposition to law. The law by such an arrangement is abrogated in its effect and it becomes a dead letter on the statute books. By a compromise with crime the law making power is set aside and the statute declaring a business a crime is in effect repealed without authority of the law making power in whom the right of repeal is vested by the constitution and all recognized rules of government.

The matter over which there has been so much contention in the city of sin as presented to the reading public is a compromise with those engaged in a prohibited business, which is gambling in the city and county of San Francisco.

It was attempted to arrange a license system by adopting an agreed standard of fines to be imposed by the courts having jurisdiction of valuations of the law prohibiting gambling, which would change the object and purpose of the law, as it would, by arrangement made by the authorities having jurisdiction, change a prohibitive system into a license system, and the prohibition which the law-making power had placed on gambling would be in effect set aside through a compromise made with those who violate the statute.

Any arrangement that would set aside in effect a criminal statute through a compromise, by any arrangement such as has been mentioned, would be criminal in itself, and there would be an illustration of a rule in criminal law which says that it requires a crime to compromise a crime. A license system pure and simple, would include no more than the moral and immoral sides to the business. But in the system proposed it would include the sides mentioned, and in addition thereto a violation of law system and order in government and a crime to which courts and judges would be parties.

WASHOE MINES.

Should the mines in Washoe continue to develop in wealth, it will be the leading county in mines in the State before the close of the year 1901. While it is not intended to overlook the claims of other mining localities, it is the desire of the JOURNAL that the county may be at the close of next year the leading county in the State in mining industries. Other parts of the State promise well at this writing, and it would be pleasant to learn of large and rich developments in any locality in the State.

Development is what is needed in all departments in business in Nevada. There is not a State in the Union that has more to develop than the Sagebrush State, or greater rewards to bestow upon those who engage in the exploration of its native resources.

When it is said that we hope Washoe will be the leading county in mines, it is based upon a desire for exploration to uncover the latent wealth there is in the county, and there it closes. If any part of the State by means of industry will surpass Washoe in work and energy, and through that means will lead Washoe, the JOURNAL will not only be well pleased over the result, but will toss its hat in the air and say well done.

Will Dance the Old Year Out.

New Faces in County Offices.

Upon the seventh day of the first month of the first year of the next century, there will come a couple of new faces into some of the county offices. The mantle of authority will fall from Elieha's to Elijah's shoulders.

Commissioner Schoelene will yield his chair in the county chambers to George Holcomb. W. H. A. Pike will receive from E. L. Williams the insignia of office of district attorney. Ward McNelly will be succeeded by Charles Leeper as constable of this township.

All the other officers of city and county will remain in statu quo, simply taking another oath and giving new bonds. Not so much of a shakeup after all. The wheels of justice and the runners of government will glide along pretty much the same as though there hadn't been an election on the sixth of last November.

LOTTERY SCHEMERS

How Certain Nevada Papers Are Beating the Devil Round the Bush.

Rev. George Rotten Vardy, procurer for the lottery, says editorially in his Hell's Herald, respecting Reno dailies and their efforts to save the State from desecration and ruin:

"These sheets pose as sincere reformists and champions of the cause of morality. They claim to be the only sheets in the State sounding the 'note of danger.' Their editorial columns are filled with their notes of danger every issue.

"The JOURNAL calls faro, roulette, poker and other gambling games 'plain gambling,' and says: 'Plain gambling is a virtue when compared with a lottery.' Gambling is gambling, no matter what the game is called, and one game is equally as bad as another.

There can be no classification of the many games; all are in the same category and no distinction can be made, and no partiality should be shown by legislating against one game and favoring another. The effects of a lottery upon the morality of the State could be no worse than the blighting curse of the scores of gambling halls in constant operation in many towns and villages in the State today."

The JOURNAL feels to a certain degree in honor bound to abstain from revealing the secret workings of the lottery promoters, having become cognizant of them through unfortunately placed confidence on the part of the managers of the plot.

If it were not that the promise of secrecy was passed, this paalm-singing hypocrit, who poses as a gospel sharp, unsullied prude and damask-cheeked innocence personified—would be shown up in his true colors.

The lottery press of the State are fighting from ambush. Not one of them dares say "The lottery is a good institution. Let us establish this philanthropic corporation in our State."

No, they argue, "The lottery is no worse than church raffles, even for the drinks, faro and nickel-in-the-slot chewing gum machines."

The JOURNAL admits that all forms of gambling are injurious to pocket-books and morals, but if the writer had a wart on his nose, he would not seek a carbuncle on his neck on the grounds that it is a similar sort of personal ornament.

Dania Society Entertainment.

Valdemar Society No. 12, Order of Dania, gave a Christmas entertainment last night. The affair was arranged in order to give the little folk an evening of pleasure, but, if the truth is known, the older people had as much fun as the younger people.

A company of three score people met in Ritor's hall, Harry Clausen was master of ceremonies.

The first period was taken up with a musical and literary program as follows:

Trio, Misses Fay Brookings, Julia Frandsen and Nora Larsen; recitations, Julia Frandsen, Nora Larsen and Emma Larsen; song, Frankie Larsen and Rollo Larsen.

Next came the giddy mazes of the waltz. Dancing continued until midnight. Then the supper march was played and the company marched to the dining hall where a sumptuous repast was spread. Good old-country fare flanked by generous wine were heartily enjoyed. Toasts and speech-making consumed the balance of the evening.

The Christmas tree was decked with gifts for all. Ed. Larsen made an excellent Santa Claus.

A Needless Alarm.

The wind was blowing a hurricane at 4:15, yesterday afternoon when the fire bell clangd out an alarm, turned in from box 25 at Second and Washington streets. The department was out with a gallop some seconds before the third round of the gong. It was a bad afternoon for a fire and no time was to be lost.

Fortunately the blaze was safely confined to a chimney in the residence of George Gulling, 207 Vine street.

A Bad Fracture.

Austin, the 10-year-old son of Loring Hart, broke his right arm near the elbow yesterday afternoon. With some other boys he was playing on an improvised merry-go-round. The apparatus overturned with the above-mentioned result.

At the Washoe.

Nothing helps a man to enjoy a well prepared meal as a bottle of old zinfandel. You can get both and the best of both at the Washoe Lunch Counter. Harry Clausen and Nels Block are good providers.

Meeting of Ditch Co.

The trustees of the Orr Water Ditch company held their last meeting for the old year yesterday. All outstanding bills were allowed and they start the twentieth century with a clean sheet.

REST, SLEEP! ALL IS OVER

Out of the darkness of the Plaza wound a slow moving line of men. Their footfalls did not echo upon the frozen ground. "Not a drum was heard; not a funeral note."

As, with measured footsteps and sad and silent mien, the procession moved down the street, the doors of saloons and gambling houses opened and crowds issued forth on the sidewalk. The clink of chips and glasses, the whirl of the wheels of fortune were stilled.

The spectators who lined the curb were as silent as the men who marched; many heads were bared to the icy air of the winter night.

It was as impressive a sight as eye could witness, made all the more so by the utter absence of ostentation.

This was the guard of honor attending the body of the late Gordon Freeman, Second Lieutenant of Troop A, First Nevada Cavalry.

A tattered flag, the gift of the Grand Army of the Republic, vested upon his bier. One of the guard carried a floral emblem, a broken column, the gift of the Fisher boys. Another bore a furled flag, bound with the badge of mourning.

Among the guard were troopers of Torrey's rough riders, the Nevada battalion, the G. A. R. and the peerless troop that helped in foreign isles to give our country victory over Spain.

When the body was placed aboard the train and started on its long journey to where sorrowing friends await, there came, sweet and soft and low, the mournful taps. "Sleep, sleep," said the bugle, "rest and sleep."

And all that is mortal of Gordon Freeman sped onward into the night. Farewell, comrade, farewell.

"Human Hearts."

On Wednesday evening the patrons of McKissick's opera house will have the opportunity of witnessing that refreshing American play of "Human Hearts," in which a dramatic story is sprinkled with pathos and comedy by plain, honest talking people, who are surrounded by scenes so realistic that one can almost smell the scent of new mown hay.

Like those other heart plays, "Shore Acres," and the "Old Homestead," it carries one back to the old farm days, the days of older, pumpkin pies, husking bees and spelling matches.

Grand Annual Sale.

The Palace Dry Goods and Carpet House announce in this issue a great annual sale of suits, capes, jackets, waists, skirts and furs at greatly reduced prices. Baron Von Schroeder has become so impressed with the morality of Reno—reading the anti-lottery editorials in the newspapers of that village—that he is said to have about made up his mind to locate there.—News.

Services at Trinity Church.

The passing of the nineteenth and the birth of the twentieth century will be celebrated by an appropriate service at Trinity church. The service will begin soon after 11:30, the first part being penitential. At 12 the new year will be welcomed by an outburst of the church's grandest hymn, the Te Deum Laudamus, and other words of prayer and praise.

It is not likely that anyone old enough to appreciate such service will be privileged to join in a record. "Come and let us sing unto the Lord."

Not a fifth of the mining locations made in Lincoln County the last two years are legal. Trouble is now being experienced in obtaining patents.
